DIGESTS OF CURRENT NYC THEATRE REVIEWS

Mandragola - 4th St (83 E 4) 5/28. 1 pro-World Telegram Sun-and 5 cons-filed on Vincent Spar production of 16th century Machiavelli play staged by Dran Seitz. An acceptably amusing talented production, rated WTB reviewer. But colleagues panned play, production, direction, acting and adaption. Several noted that the constant laughing of the onstage characters was not copied by members of the audience. Atkinson, Times, believes 1518 play could possibly be handled by superb stylists, but fears that current version is labored, humorless and coarse without being funny. Costumes, lighting and songs by Roger Starr were only items he praised. Kerr, Herald Tribune, also felt that play itself probably has some merit, but thought production heavy-handed and extra-leering in both acting and direction. Coleman, Mirror, was only con reviewer to okay production, but he thought play today seems labored and juvenile. Watts, Post, singled Nona Bankhart in small role as only item that survived a dull evening. McClain, Journal American, marked it feeble, poor taste.

Nightcap - Showplace - 136 W 4 5/27. 2 pros- Watts, Post and McCord, Herald Tribune, filed on -Greenwich Village night club revue by Jerry Herman. Post drama critic found it charming with bright words and attractive tunes. Show is fresh and pleasant fun which brought back memories of the historic Rodgers and Hart "Garrick Gaieties." Herald Tribune drama reporter praised Herman's lyrics and music as prolific and versatile in conception and execution. This "Nightcap" should keep you awake and laughing long after your bed-time, he noted. Six of songs have been optioned by Leonard Sillman for his next New Faces. Mid-week performances are at 11:30 PM and weekend showings at 10PM, 12, and 2 AM.

Stalag 17 - Fort Lee, NJ 5/26. North Jersey Playhouse production with John Ireland, staged by J. Robert Dietz, enjoyed by Herridge, Post. Director Dietz drew top critical honors for recreating a convincing group of prisoners in war play after only one week of rehearsal. Stalag 17 plays through June 15.

Guests of the Nation - ANTA Theatre Matinee at Theatre De Lys 5/20. 1 pro-Gelb, Times- filed on Frank O'Connor's lyrical short story adapted and staged by Neil McKenzie. Also presented at special performance for Greater NY Chapter of ANTA was Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Aria Da Capo." Robert Geringer, Lair Clancy, Michael Lewis included in cast of former, Dolores Mann, Louis Lippa in latter. Times reviewer felt that O'Connor's story, partly narrated and partly acted out, was skillfully adapted and directed, well acted and contained the rich and rushing flow of the author's language. It deserves to be seen by many more people than could be crowded into the single matinee, Gelb noted. He also found second part of bill most fetching.

The Tragedy of Don Cristobal and Dona Rosita - Community Church - 40 E 35 St 5/29. 1 con-Calta, Times- filed on first US presentation of a Federico Garcia Lorca play staged by Story Talbot. Play written for Spanish traditional puppet stage. Cast generally gives good account of themselves but are not in harmony with the Lorca composition which calls for greater subtlety of interpretation, critic noted. Play emerges as an uneventful and unsubstantial dramatic piece.

COMMENTS

"On Stage, Mr. Jefferson" by Jean Lee Latham ( Harper & Bro $2.95) rated as a breezy, backstage portrait of Joseph Jefferson, 3d, originator of the famed Rip Van Winkle role, by Downing, Times. Book for teen-ager gives fine and accurate background of life with average troupe of strolling players early in the last century.

COMMENTS

Oh Captain! MGM disc with Marilyn Moore and Jackie Paris and jazz band with Dick Hyman and Coleman Hawkins rated as a novelty, though not very well done, by Watt, News. Both jazz singers have weak voices and orchestra makes some nice sounds from time to time. In the case of Oh Captain!, critic really doesn't care. But he fears the next move may be to abandon original-cast records altogether or else to replace the original Broadway performers with jazzmen.

STAGE

VIEWS

Tedium is the gravest backstage menace at a theatre where a long run is in progress, states "Stage" editorial, considering the problems of a long run show. Playing the same part night after night for years on end may well cause mental black-outs and produce a state of mind which defies the cleverest technician in the profession to give a genuinely first-rate performance. A thousand and one nights in the same play may even thrust an actor into partial oblivion. He is out of sight as far as first-nighters and critics are concerned and probably out of mind too.

DEPARTMENT

PERFORMING ARTS SCHOOL... Theatre people protesting the planned merger of NYC High School of Performing Arts with High School of Commerce in a new Lincoln Square building were joined by Chapman News, and an editorial in Post. Critic feels 10 year old school has been a fine innovation in municipal education and it has a fine record. Post urges city to leave a good thing alone, school has shown it can perform a special service for talented and aspiring young people.

COLUMN TIPS... CBS offering Lerner and Loewe $3 million for their 30% of My Fair Lady, reports Farrell, World Telegram & Sun... Backers of a Broadway hit threaten to call in the D. A. alleging mismanagement of funds, whispers Wilson, Post... Phyllis Gates expected to use her alimony, as the ex-Mrs. Rock Hudson, to become a NY play producer, hears Kilgallen, Journal American.

REPERTORY DOLLARS... Mrs. V. Beaumont Allen's $3 million gift to Lincoln Square Repertory Theatre is a cheering reminder that in these days of confiscatory taxes there still are some millionaires who can be tapped, comments Chapman, News. Millionaires should indeed support artists, or encourage them anyway, and not leave it all to the tax dodging foundations.

DRAMA MAIL BOX... Norris Houghton, Phoenix co-producer, in Times note expressed shock at planned merger of the High School of Performing Arts, an action that can only lead to the eventual destruction of this valuable project... Either quality of average summer production must raise or ticket prices must lower, warns a C. D. subscriber.

CRITICAL THOUGHTS... Quick collapse of several interesting Off Broadway plays recently should be a warning against the perils of a possible saturation point in this valuable field of theatre, but probably won't be, fears Watts, Post... A really bad show gives you time to think, while at a good one you are so busy enjoying it--and yourself--that practically all cerebration stops, explains Kerr, Herald Tribune.

FIRST NIGHTERS REPORT... Roster of die-hard First Nighters has dwindled through the years and the only veterans stemming back 25 years are the Ira Katzenbergs and the Gilbert Millers, reviews Sobol, Journal American. Current list also includes Howard Cullmans, Jimmy Stroocks, Harry Goulds, Moss Hart, Alfred Streisins, Mortimer Burnsides and Marlene Dietrich when she's in town.

SECOND GUESSES... Comic Strip, in a season in which rootless facetiousness passes for comedy, is a refreshing piece of drollery that stands for something, cheers Atkinson, Times... The perfect Off Broadway play introducing an immensely congenial and zany mind of an author whose works will soon be on Broadway, adds Kerr, Herald Tribune... Though the fun may be fairly primitive and the play's structure inexpert, Watts, Post, states that there's no uncertainty in the author's gift for fresh hilarity.

INTERVIEW HI-LITES... Ann Harding, who returned to NY stage this week in Garden District, admitted to Herridge, Post, that she was petrified before her first performance in the Williams' play, because she didn't have a chance to rehearse with the cast and because in the play you can't change a word without losing the rhythm... She told McClain, Journal American, that when it became obvious that Hollywood wasn't making many of the kind of pictures with parts for her she decided to come back to her first love, the theatre. But the play scripts offered were dreary, disillusioned, dirty and often loaded with preachment. Actress has strong belief that the theatre should not preach, but should entertain.

Mandragola revival of 16th century play seems like a loud, dull dirty joke. With sole exception of delightful singing and lute playing by Roger Starr, casts histrionic abilities seem on a par with a TV quiz session.

* * * * *

"Gertrude Lawrence... A Rememberance" album (Decca) is a heart warming collection of the best known and best loved songs of the star. Disc should be an often-played item in every theatre fans collection.

* * * * *

The proposed merger of the High School of Performing Arts with the High School of Commerce in the Lincoln Square project can probably be blamed more on limitations of space in the new art project than by design to kill off the valuable public school. Even the Lincoln Square and City Planning experts know "there is no business like show business." Unless the Board of Education is ready and equipped to train would be producers at such a combined school, it would be wiser to leave the present building and school stay on West 46th St.

* * * * *

In a summer theatre season which will be jam-packed with star packages the second company of the enchanting Off Broadway production The Boy Friend should prove a welcome change of pace. If successful strawhat producers might try other established Off Broadway productions as legit summer fare instead of relying almost entirely on stars and their own choice of often second rate plays.

* * * * *

A solid study of modern air-conditioning systems and methods would seem to be required adult education for each and every theatre producer--Broadway, Off Broadway, Summer. It is a sad but established fact that motion picture business increases each summer mostly due to the fine air-cooling systems installed in most houses across the country. And it is equally traditional that almost no sane person would go to a legit theatre during the summer to cool off. Most NY theatres--on and off Broadway--have noisy, out-of-date air cooling systems. Most are used during intermissions and during the first few minutes of each act.

* * * * *

Though they are efficient to a degree most of these systems are never on long enough during the warm weather to more than tease an audience. Often it is the cast members that demand that the noisy machines be turned off. Often it is the producer saving electricity or ice. Whatever the reason and/or excuse the result is the same.

* * * * *

If NY theatre-goers are ready for such new playwrights as Ionesco and Beckett, the least the producers and house managers can do is to install the latest in modern air conditioning to go along with the new plays.

* * * * *

The federal injunction against the Shubert Theatres forcing them to dispose of certain properties in several cities has so far worked to the disadvantage of the theatre fan. Several out of town theatres have been sold to non-theatre interests. It would be a pity if the National Theatre in NYC, up for auction in mid-June, were also lost for future theatre productions. It is sincerely hoped that the new owner retains the house as is and does not convert it into a parking lot.
